Construction Defense Litigation

Hart Wagner lawyers have decades of experience defending construction professionals in the Pacific Northwest.

Our clients choose our construction defense attorneys because of our comprehensive understanding of the industry, our meticulous preparation, and our skill in the courtroom.

Unparalleled trial experience gives us the upper hand when it comes to defending your work. We also pride ourselves on our ability to avoid legal disputes through preventative measures that save our clients money and time. We defend owners, contractors, and subcontractors in construction defect claims arising out of residential and commercial construction projects as well as structural damage claims arising from building bridges, highways, stadiums and commercial venues. We also litigate and resolve contractual disputes and defend employers in claims brought under Oregon's employer liability act which arise from construction projects.

Our clients include every member of the construction industry: architects, developers, contractors, suppliers, and more. You can depend on us for a bold and decisive legal action from simple to complex claims, and we have the results to prove it.
